MULTIPLICATION – TRAIN, EQUIP AND SEND!

The Decade of Double Harvest is underway!

When God gives a big vision, He also gives the “how”. How do we get to the milestone of 150 million souls by the end of this decade? How do we make it happen?

When Daniel Kolenda asked that question of the Lord, the answer was, “Multiplication and collaboration.” And Bootcamp – CfaN’s intensive 3-month evangelism training program – is an integral, vital part of seeing this vision come to fruition. In Daniel’s words:

“If you think that this number, 150 million, sounds unbelievable, I don’t blame you. Of course, these are enormous numbers. Yet these numbers were not the most exciting thing that the Lord showed me. I believe that God will use CfaN in the next ten years to initiate the biggest worldwide evangelistic movement in history. Thousands of men and women will rise up like Reinhard Bonnke and proclaim the Gospel all over the world before Jesus returns.”

With the goal of training at least 2,000 effective, fiery, passionate evangelists by 2030, there is no time to lose! These evangelists, filled with the Holy Spirit and burning to save the lost, are key to this multiplication vision. So how is CfaN working to ready this new generation of soul-winners?

“The harvest is plentiful but the workers are few. Ask the Lord of the harvest, therefore, to send out workers into his harvest field.”

Matthew 9:37-38

Train, Equip, Send

Where do the Bootcamp students come from?

This year, we have just over 100 students, twice as many as 2020. They are 60% international (40% from the USA), so we have people from all over the world. It's a mixed group of men and women, and all ages from early twenties right up to seventies. Some have many years of ministry experience, and some are brand new to the mission field.

What's a day like at Bootcamp?

It's intense! After getting up, they spend about an hour and a half in prayer, led by Eric Gilmour. Then they typically have two sessions from some of the absolute best soul-winners and evangelists pouring into them. It's at a really high level, both the spiritual and the practical, on how to have a successful evangelistic campaign ministry. And it's seven days a week. Last year's course was 6 months. This year, we've squeezed the same material into 3 months. The pace is relentless.

What is the aim of the training?

We want to equip these people to the level of being a lead evangelist. We want them to get to the point where, if you dropped them off anywhere in the world, they would begin to win souls, then all the way up to mobilizing churches and mass campaign evangelism.

What does "practical" training mean?

It's literally everything they'll need, from how to pack a suitcase so your clothes don't wrinkle, how to navigate airports, all the way to spending time behind the scenes working closely with CfaN staff in every department. We want them to understand how to organize events, how to run a ministry with integrity and efficiency, everything they need to be effective evangelists.

How do they practice what they're learning?

There are outreaches happening all the time. Weekend outreaches on Friday and Saturday nights are intense. They're going into bars and clubs downtown here in Orlando, preaching the Gospel to the last, the least and the lost. But in addition to the planned outreaches, these guys are unstoppable! They're going out in the week in their own time. Recently, with just an hour of off time, some students decided to go out and have an "hour of power" – and 38 souls were saved! Every weekend, we're seeing at least a hundred people saved.

And how can anyone preach unless they are sent?
As it is written:
„How beautiful are the feet of those who bring good news!“

Romans 10:15

“I see listening as the most important gift I can give someone who I am mentoring. In this way I seek to build trust by showing that I am truly interested in her personal story and journey. Very often the student is full of zeal but lacks clarity. By asking appropriate questions I help them express their own thinking and goals.

My job is not to teach but to help them to process the “steak” they receive from their excellent lecturers. Sometimes this means helping them to unlearn old spiritual thinking in order to build new principles into their lives for the ministry they feel called to.

I pray earnestly for a “second ear” so that I can be sensitive to heart/character issues. Living in community for the first time (as it sometimes is for a student) can reveal things in themselves that have never been confronted. This can be painful but is a vital part of maturing.

Though mentoring is initially part of the Bootcamp experience, it sometimes gives rise to an ongoing relationship in which the new minister has the resource of experience at their disposal. I want them to know they are not alone!

Finally – mentoring demands humility from both parties. For me it is the spiritual equivalent of washing the feet of these “called” ones, removing the dust that their journey has accumulated so far, in preparation for running boldly with the Gospel. I can think of no greater honor at this stage of my life.”

Mentoring

During Bootcamp, every student is matched with a mentor, someone with ministry experience and insight who can help them grow. Evangeline Vandenberg, wife of CfaN’s Vice President, is a seasoned minister with decades of experience, and now a mentor to Bootcamp students, passing on her knowledge and spiritual understanding. What does that entail?

Beyond my hopes

Kaisa has had her own ministry for more than 20 years and has already conducted countless outreaches with thousands of visitors. But after attending a one-week School of Evangelism in 2020, she felt God telling her that it was of the utmost importance that she apply to Bootcamp. She is currently one of the 2021 Bootcamp evangelists-in-training.

“It was the first day of orientation, and I was already overwhelmed with finding out all we would be learning, receiving and doing. It was far beyond my hopes and imagination. It’s like a multi-faceted diamond. You can get so much. It depends on you, how much you are willing to put in, how much time and effort you give. You can get a whole lot if you become active in every possible area, beyond just the compulsory classes and activities.

Within the Bootcamp 2021 group, there is such an amazing dynamic. Imagine being in the same room with 100 people, all with the same passion, the same drive to see the lost come to Jesus. When we’re together, it’s all about souls. It’s almost tangible. And I know that God is putting me together with people I will be in relationship with for many years to come, ministering together, encouraging one another.

My internship with CfaN during Bootcamp means I am the assistant to Roselyne Ayeola, (Bootcamp Administrator), working with her before school begins and after hours. I know that God placed me there for a reason, and it’s an incredible opportunity to serve practically. There is an unbelievable amount of admin to run a Bootcamp, and I am learning so much. I am so excited to soon be on the ground for Decapolis in Tanzania, helping to organize one of the campaigns. This will most likely be the highlight of my Bootcamp experience, and I cannot wait!”

WE'RE NOT JUST MULTIPLYING THE HARVEST OF SOULS. WE'RE MULTIPLYING THE LABORERS.

Bootcamp Initiation

At the end of the current 3-month training in Orlando, it's time to put it all into action on the ground in Tanzania, Africa. The Initiation Trip is where it all comes together, as they organize outreaches, preach the Gospel and pray for the sick.

The Initiation Trip is an indispensable part of equipping the Bootcamp evangelists to win souls in mass evangelism.

That's done in a number of different ways. For one, teams will be going into schools, taught and led by Jako and Karin Hugo, who have been preaching in schools in East Africa for over 14 years now.

Jared Horton
Associate Campaign Minister

Then we have the Gospel Trucks, which can be used to set up a stage with a sound system practically anywhere. Using these, small Bootcamp teams conduct a one-hour outreach. They preach the Gospel for about 30 minutes, and in the second half hour, they pray for the sick and take testimonies. It's a very condensed version of what Evangelist Daniel Kolenda does in a Great Gospel Campaign meeting. It gives them great practice in preaching, giving an altar call, praying for the sick and so on.

All these village outreaches are done in cooperation with local churches. They help to find suitable places for the outreaches, and we work with them for follow-up, just like the big campaigns, connecting people into local congregations.

The logistics of organizing so many outreaches are mind-boggling, but we have an amazing team. In fact, the Bootcamp graduates from last year are now helping us with a lot of the team-leading and coaching. In this multiplication process, we are having to grow our team incredibly quickly. We want to put every graduate to work!

Last year's graduate – now a campaign organizer

One year ago, David Rotärmel was a student in the first Bootcamp. Now he's hard at work helping with outreach organization behind the scenes for Bootcamp Initiation in mid-April in Tanzania, East Africa.

David says: "With this year's Bootcamp, we have a new initiative called Town Campaigns, where we give groups of ten students the opportunity to organize a town campaign themselves. I've recently returned from Tanzania, where I was scouting potential cities, and setting up the campaign structure. That includes training local organizers, and then putting them in contact with the students here in Orlando. Once they are in Tanzania, they'll finish setting up the events on the ground. And then, in the final week of their Initiation Trip, they'll conduct the campaigns they've organized, as well as preach in those events."

For David, getting to work on the Decapolis campaigns last year was an eye-opening, life-changing experience.

"During Decapolis – actually being on the ground, doing it, seeing it being done – it just took everything so much deeper for me. I finally understood how the vision is being executed. I felt a tremendous burden to help other evangelists get the same experience, both of organizing and preaching at a mass campaign. It's difficult to describe what it does to your heart to be in full swing, preaching the Gospel, praying for the sick – everything that CfaN has known for years, but that we are seeing for the first time. It's amazing. That's something we have to pass on to the whole new generation of evangelists being raised up by Evangelist Kolenda."

It's working!

The aim of Bootcamp is to give attendees the best possible apprenticeship in campaign evangelism. By the time they've completed this one-of-a-kind training, we want to see them out there, fulfilling their calling, winning people for Jesus. This is not about absorbing information and getting a certificate. It's about a sold-out, all-for-Jesus generation giving everything for the Gospel. And already, we are seeing wonderful results!

Several of last year's Bootcamp graduates have been in Tanzania almost constantly since Decapolis, conducting hundreds of outreaches, seeing well over 100,000 people respond to the altar call in 2021 already! With small teams preaching the simple, straightforward Gospel in as many as 9 outreaches a day, it's physically punishing, but incredibly rewarding.

Other graduates have already gone on to conduct mass evangelistic campaigns in other countries, with CfaN's help and support. Others still are working tirelessly in CfaN teams: organizing events, supporting CfaN staff in every department, leading outreaches with this year's students, and shouldering tremendous responsibility on the ground in Africa.

And you are part of this

This is the "how" of multiplication! It would simply be impossible for one single preacher and one team to reach the vast number of people God has called us to reach. To make this vision a reality, every single aspect of this ministry must be scaled up. Whichever part each one of us plays – preaching, training, technical, financial support, intercession or administration – all are equally valuable to this ministry and to the Lord.

That includes you, praying for and supporting us. You too are an indispensable and extremely valuable part of this ministry.
